

McConnell Merlot

"A good House wine, but it won't ever get through the Senate."

A wine that changes the rules of wine making and then changes them back again: our vintner has no shame. None. And he seems to be proud of it.

This merlot has an okay nose but hardly any chin.

McConnell Merlot was voted number one in a blind taste test, but Russian, or at the very least, Ukrainian, interference is suspected.

"It is a superior wine, just SUPERIOR. Really, really SUPERIOR. And someday I might even try it. I hear it goes really, really well with Quarter Pounders."

—Donald Trump

GOVERNMENT WARNING: With all the cutbacks to government oversight agencies, the gutting of the USDA Food Safety and Inspection Service and the relaxing of environmental protections, we don't really have any warnings for you anymore. Drink all you want and hey, if you want to start smoking again, it's perfectly okay with us.
